new addition

Gentlemen,

The books reached me yesterday, when I had given them up. I have now half a volume, which I send in order to prevent delay, but I regret that you do not give me more time. I hope the post master will pay great attention, for long detention in country may oblige her to make my new ones. I have greatly improved the style, though much more might be done, had time & recurred the sentences.

You shall have the rest next week.

Yours very truly

J. Fenimore Cooper
